If he has a watch, he frequently neglects to wind it, and, when ho does wind it, sets it by guess. If he would wash his hands, he neglects to scrub the dirt from them. When he puts on his garments he does not give that thoughtful attention to strings, pins and buttons, that a careful and tidy person does. He parts with his pocket money in such a slip-shod manner, that ho never has anything to put into the missionary box. When the box goes round, he says ho didn t think about it. When he sits down to study his Sunday School lesson, which is very seldom, he groans several times over the task which is before him, then concludes that he will postpone it till Saturday evening, and take some exercise now, which he very much needs. Of course...
