

Indian Scout Talks

By Charles A. Eastman

RareBooksClub. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 32 pages. Dimensions: 9.7in. x 7.4in. x 0.1in. Excerpt: . . . width at the tail end. The head and neck curve slightly upward and are painted to look as much like those of a snake as possible; the body of the wand is polished and hardened by fire. The Indian boy hurls this mimic serpent into the loose, light snow, where it disappears, to appear again some distance off; again it dives beneath the surface only to come up again, somewhat like skipping a stone on water. The winner is he who can make it travel farthest. Fig. 8. Fig. 9. Fig. 10. Ground arrows are of two kinds. One kind, called mech, is made of the short ribs of buffalo or beef cattle. The rib is cut off four inches from the free end, and two small holes bored, into which 95 sticks, the size of a lead-pencil and about a foot in length, are tightly inserted. The end of each is feathered like an arrow, and they spread out so that the feathered shafts are perhaps nine inches apart. The whole looks much like the white boys shuttlecock. This mech is grasped...
